the Americans excited great attention in Europe; and, while Japan was still sore and shaken with the turmoil which these astonishing changes had produced, the great powers were swift to follow up the advantages which the republic had secur-ed for itself. During 1858 and 1859, similar treaties were concluded by Great Britain, Russia and France. In 1860, Prussia made its traty; and, in 1864 NO. 31. Switzerland secured like relations with the empire. Supplementary treaties were, made from time to time, but Harris' treaty has continued, from 1857 until now, the basis of all negotiations and agreements In 1852, California, then a newly ac. which have followed its consummation. quired state, formed the western frontier Thus, after unnumbered centuries of al-
